The Colonel's Secret Recipe

Ingredients

- Chickens (inquisitive and friendly animals who would naturally form social hierarchies, build nests, dust-bathe and care for their young)
- Cruelty

Directions

1. Starve parent birds constantly and slice their beaks off with a hot blade.
2. Take baby chickens and stuff them into waste-filled sheds with tens of thousands of other birds.
3. Feed them growth-inducing antibiotics that may cripple them.
4. Keep them in feces-contaminated sheds for 6 to 7 weeks and hope that they don't die of suffocation, respiratory disease or heart attacks.
5. If they survive, toss them by their legs into small cages, crammed one upon another so as to ensure that there is no space for movement, and roughly shove the cages into trucks.
6. Truck them to slaughter in all weather extremes; many birds will die on the way or be wounded by the rusted and broken wire of the cages.
7. If they make it to the abattoir alive, snap their spindly, probably broken legs into shackles and run them through an electrified-water bath that may or may not render them insensible to pain.
8. Cut their throats; try to hit both veins, or they won't die for about four minutes and may regain consciousness.
9. Immediately dump them into scalding water to remove their feathers; even if they're still conscious or have regained consciousness, this won't affect the taste.

Note: All KFC chickens must be slaughtered before they are 2 months old, out of a natural lifespan of more than 10 years.

- You can help: Please, ask KFC to leave India. Let the company know that you won't spend money at its restaurants:
